When the interior designer of this meticulous home was approached by the owners in 2017, she jumped at the opportunity to make their every wish come true. "The couple had been patiently waiting for the right time for this project and wanted it to be understated, elegant but still comfortable and homely – place that they could retire to after a busy day to relax and unwind," says the designer.

Built over a double plot, the home is just shy of 1 500m² and boasts three swimming pools and seven bedrooms. "As the family has a large extended family whom they love to entertain and accommodate, it was important that each bedroom in the home had its own personality and style," says the designer.

To integrate the design into the wider environment, the designer and her team made use of soft colours and timber, adding warmth and blending the home into the surrounding landscape, giving it a humble look despite its generous size.

The kitchen is undeniably the heart of the home. With a grand central island >

"The kitchen is undeniably the heart of this home."

ABOVE: This sensational home was built by Muller Construction, a family-owned and -operated residential building company based in Ballito, KwaZulu-Natal. Francois Muller, director of Muller Construction, turned his passion into a very successful building company and together with his dynamic team could not be prouder of how this home turned out.

BELOW: Steelform is a specialist manufacturer of staircases as well as glass, stainless and mild steel balustrades and concrete formwork systems for the domestic, residential and commercial construction markets nationwide. The company's products are lightweight and easy to handle on-site and are also structurally analysed and verified by independent structural engineers.

ABOVE: OLALA Interiors was responsible for the design and manufacture of the kitchen, ceiling design and lighting specification in this stylish home. It was also tasked with all the interior design, bathroom design, BIC and bathroom manufacture. The company supplied all window treatments, and supplied and specified all lights, upholstery, rugs, wallpapers and décor. The company also designed and manufactured the outdoor lounge sofa, braai and bar area. The owners wanted something elegant and spectacular, which was certainly delivered.

and numerous hobs with downdraft extraction units, it is a chef's dream. "The breathtaking views while at the cook's post is accentuated by the swimming pool and firepit beyond. Striking pendant lights turn up the glamour," says the designer.

Another wow factor has to be the grand double staircase. It can only be described as majestic, in what promises to lie upstairs beyond its glory. 🏡
